BACKGROUND

A National Heritage Area is a part of our country's landscape that has been recognized by the United States Congress for its unique contribution to the American experience. A Heritage Area may be created to celebrate a critical moment in history or be associated with a large-scale natural resource such as a river valley, or be a cultural resource such as an historic canal or roadway. Other areas, like Silos & Smokestacks National Heritage Area (SSNHA), are developed around a common theme or an industry that influenced the culture and history of that area.

In late 1996, Silos & Smokestacks received its designation as a National Heritage Area as part of the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act, making it one of 40 national heritage areas in the country granted this important distinction. As of 2000, Silos & Smokestacks was authorized to seek matching federal funds annually through the National Park Service.

The National Park Service determined that northeast Iowa is a living landscape of heritage resources of national significance. Within the 37-county area, much of the heritage of America's agricultural revolution still exists and is in need of preservation and interpretation. Iowans and visitors desire opportunities to learn about the farms, the industries, and the people that strive to maintain a wholesome food supply.

The Silos & Smokestacks National Heritage Area mission is to preserve and tell the story of American agriculture and its global significance through partnerships and activities that celebrate the land, people and communities.

The agricultural heritage of the area is being explored through interpretation of six themes:

- The Fertile Land;
- Farmers and Families;
- The Changing Farm;
- Higher Yields: The Science and Technology of Agriculture;
- Farm to Factory: Agribusiness in Iowa; and
- Organizing for Agriculture: Policies and Politics.

Each theme discovers different features of the area's heritage. Taken together the themes allow visitors to interpret and experience the story in many ways: in small towns and larger cities; along trails and county roads; and on farms, natural areas, local museums and historical buildings.

Because the size of the Heritage Area is over 20,000 square miles, visitors use cars, buses or bicycles to travel between Heritage Area locations. Most Heritage Area sites already have interpretive materials or programs to explain their unique features and stories. SSNHA is building the framework – signage system, exhibits at partner sites, visitor kiosks, publications and brochures, tours, and educational websites – which will tie the stories together about the Heritage Area and its destinations to create a quality visitor experience.

GOALS OF THE INTERNSHIP GRANT PROGRAM

It is the intent of Silos & Smokestacks National Heritage Area (SSNHA) to support sites, attractions and events of educational value that focus on America's agricultural heritage as it relates to the 37 counties of northeastern Iowa. The following are the goals of the Internship Grant Program:

1. Expose students to the diverse careers related to agriculture and cultural organizations in northeast Iowa and provide opportunities for the student to establish positive relationships with various SSNHA partner sites.
2. Provide opportunities for students to expand his/her experiences and skills and to apply concepts and philosophies learned in the classroom to on-the-job situations.
3. Aid SSNHA partner sites in hiring qualified and enthusiastic college interns that offer fresh new perspectives and skills to the partner site and its mission.
4. Enhance the site's agricultural connection through projects that preserve and interpret America's agricultural and agricultural industrial stories and its significance to the nation and the world consistent with the SSNHA Interpretive Plan.
